

supports anti-LGBT organizations

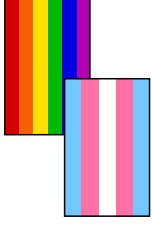

Chick-Fil-A and their charitable foundation (the Chick-Fil-A Foundation) are dedicated to opposing equal rights for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people. In the past three years, they have donated more than $1.8m to:

- the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, which punishes its employees for being gay or transgender
- the Salvation Army, which has a history of turning away LGBT youth from its shelters
- the Paul Anderson Youth Home, which teaches its vulnerable young residents that same-gender marriage is “rage against Jesus Christ and His values”

When asked whether Chick-Fil-A opposed marriage rights for LGBT people, CEO Dan Cathy replied that the company was “guilty as charged”.

Is this a company you want to keep on supporting?

Support LGBT people: don't eat at Chick-Fil-A

supports anti-LGBT organizations

Chick-Fil-A and their charitable foundation (the Chick-Fil-A Foundation) are dedicated to opposing equal rights for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people. In the past three years, they have donated more than $1.8m to:

- the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, which punishes its employees for being gay or transgender
- the Salvation Army, which has a history of turning away LGBT youth from its shelters
- the Paul Anderson Youth Home, which teaches its vulnerable young residents that same-gender marriage is “rage against Jesus Christ and His values”

When asked whether Chick-Fil-A opposed marriage rights for LGBT people, CEO Dan Cathy replied that the company was “guilty as charged”.

Is this a company you want to keep on supporting?

Support LGBT people: don't eat at Chick-Fil-A